

VISIT WITH THE REBBE

Circa early 5723

During the New York gubernatorial elections of 1962 (5723), the Jewish Democratic candidate Robert M. Morgenthau came to visit the Rebbe and requested a bracha for his career.

Many people of influence and politicians would come meet the Rebbe, and the Rebbe would use the opportunity to encourage them to utilize their position and influence for the good of the community. Additionally, the Rebbe often spoke of pressing matters that were affecting the Jewish community at the time.

This yechidus took place shortly after the yom tov season of Tishrei.

Also present was New York City Mayor Robert Wagner; Milton Mollen, Chairman of New York City Housing and Redevelopment Board; members of the Rebbe's mazkirus and several Lubavitch askanim.

Among the topics spoken during this 30 minute yechidus was government aid to parochial schools, a measure the Rebbe was strongly supportive of, and an impending bill regarding Shabbos and shechita.

Mr. Morgenthau was ultimately defeated by the incumbent Governor Nelson Rockefeller. Yet he continued to hold high political positions in the State of New York for years after.
